THE STAR ROUTE ARGUMENT.

The Court Rules That One Speech Must Suffice for Each Defendant.

When the star route trial was resumed yesterday, Judge Wylie said that he would dispose of the question of the number of counsel that would be allowed to address the jury for the defense. The rules of practice in different courts were cited by Judge Wylie, in the course of the delivery of an opinion of some length, and the conclusion reached was that each defendant should be allowed one closing argument by his chosen counsel.

Mr. Henkle presumed that there would be no objection to a division of his labors, as he Suffice for Each Defendant.
